

Knowledge, Power & Authority

When power becomes deed through knowing agreement then good may become. Should power become deed through a true authority then good may become also, but in a system that is more susceptible to corruption and decay. Should power be deployed through arbitrary usurpation of authority then good may struggle to become and people may feel alienated from meaning.